Despite a long career accompanying some of the top names in the music industry, violin/viola master JIMBO ROSS recorded his first jazz album in 2024. That debut jazz album, Jazz Passion and Latin Satin, received rave reviews. JW Vibe said, "Fans who find themselves instantly enraptured with Jimbo Ross's magnificent, rhythmically multi-faceted and adventurously improvisation-filled ensemble album could have a field day just citing the iconic credits."

On Ross' newest album, SO DO IT, he once again wows us with his virtuosic, high-energy performance on a program of jazz classics.

SO DO IT was recorded live in the studio. Ross says, "We recorded all these tunes live in the studio to capture that spontaneous combustion that you can only achieve by feeding off of each other."

Ross likes to find hidden gems that aren't as recorded as much and then put his own spin on them. He explains, "I like to surprise listeners with material that I feel needs to be recorded, especially on the violin/viola. With my 5 strings, I can go down to those lower viola notes, play the lovely mid-range that resonates so beautifully on the viola, and soar high in the violin register all in one phrase. I really love the range of the viola because it's more in the gutsy human voice range that is appealing to the ear."

Jimbo Ross's virtuosity is on full display on SO DO IT. Although he's been playing jazz for over 40 years with some of the biggest names in the industry, Ross is a relative newcomer in the jazz recording space. Listening to the high caliber of music on this album, it's better late than never. There are only a handful of jazz viola players, and Ross truly stands at the pinnacle of this exclusive group.
